Father J. Patrick Foley, a diocesan priest ordained in 1973, has served in a variety of settings (parish and campus ministry, administration, high school and college teacher), and along the way has directed numerous retreats, missions, and days of recollection. Since 1995 these have been the focus of his ministry--one that is taking him to dioceses, religious communities and parishes across the United States. In addition to degrees in philosophy and theology, he earned an M.A. in speech and drama from the Catholic University of America, and an M.A. and Ph.D. in formative spirituality from Duquesne University. His articles on spirituality have appeared in several journals. He also serves the Diocese of Reno, Nevada, as the Director of Ongoing Formation for Permanent Deacons.
